

As a democracy the idea of being anyone's subject is completely foreign to us. When we say Christ is our King, what do we understand about the relationship. Do we think of our relationship to Christ the King as symbolic or concrete?

I think many of us tend to think of this relationship as symbolic, Christ is King, He's in charge, as long as he doesn't challenge me when I don't want to be challenged. The idea that we are His subjects crosses our minds remotely, but do we think in terms of actually being owned by God? Think back into movies you've seen, books you've read the King's power was absolute, and when human often used selfishly. Christ's authority is on quite another level, Creator, creature level.

This week in prayer ask yourself what kind of authority does God have in your life? Do I allow Him to reign in my heart, or has something else taken His rightful seat?

May the Love, Peace and Grace of God be with you,
Fr. Adam
